Q.1

---

There is a benefit to patience not only in food, but also in life. Think of a time when you had to wait for something important. Were there any benefits to waiting?

---

---

When you share a meal with others, which is more important: the food on the plate or the people around the table?

Q.3

---

---

What evidence of patience is there on your plate today? Is there a ripe tomato that required patience from a farmer, or a carefully chopped carrot in your salad? How does this reminder of patience affect how you view waiting in other areas of life?

Q.4

---

Hospitality is about service, not performance. Consider how you might be able to welcome people into your home if you remove the need to impress from the hospitality equation. Whom might you be able to include outside of your regular friend group?
